and Alfred Iverson, made speeches of some significance. Mr. Toombs said self-protection demanded that they should teach the North that the South would not submit to "such diabolical attempts to abolitionize a Territory, whose climate, soil and productions, indicated it as favorable for the extension of slavery. It was an attempt to circumscribe it."

The Paget Sound Courier of the 5th inst., is taken up with the Indians disturbances in that neighborhood. It says

Hy persons from Scattle, we leard that five citizens of that place, who left in different comsanies for the Colville mines, have been murdered on the cast' side of the Cascade HOPS.

The report of his speech proceeds-He proceeded to show the importance to the South of the admission of Kansas into the Union as a State State; it was the key to the great West; the high road to the Pacific: its influence in the formation of States from the Territories South and West of it was of vital consequence to the slaveholder in Missouri. It had been said that slavery would not be profitable in Kansas; this was great mistake. It was in the same latitude th Missouri ; its soil very much the same In no State in the Union was slave labor more profitable than in Missouri; the histo-ty of the institution there was the best evi nee of this. By the census of 1840 her slave population was only forty thousand; by the census of 1850 it was more thandouble this number. Out of the eighty old thousand slaves the census showed that fifty thousand of them were in the Western bor-der counties of the State, immediately adjucent to Kansas. Hemp, tobacco, wheat and corn are the principal products of Missouri. The soil of Kansas has been found equally adapted to their growth. Their cultivation was by far more profitable than cotton; the history of slave labor in Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri had proved it to be so.

A Capt. Lomax next made what is called a "A capt. Lomax next made what is called a relish it with as much guste as a confirmed toper does his 'tod.' And many times have we seen a 'wild, impulsive, gushing thing of done nobly." Kansas was the keystone of the Union. It was of vital importance, not only to Missouri, but to each almost take the fur off a bison. The old ladies portance, not only to Missouri, but to each of the slaveholding States, that it should some into the Union as a Slave State. The admission of California had deprived us of the balance of power in the Senate. Now was the time, and the occasion to restore it. The Hon. Alfred Iverson next spoke.

The policy of the North, said he, was to surround the South with a cordon of Free States, and, by confining slavery to a limited area, to crush it out. In this point of view, the maintenance of slavery in Kansas was a the maintenance of slavery in Kansas was a matter of vital interest to the South. If slavery gives way in Kansas, Missouri will be surrounded on three sides by non-slave holding States, and the institution must give way there; it will also be in peril in the Indian Territory lying South of Kansas; it will then only remain for the Abolitionists to extend their influence to Western Texas, and the great object of their ambition will be the great object of their ambition will be heavier structure might have been reared. extend their influence to Western Texas, and the great object of their ambition will be attained. The South will then be reduced to a hopeless minority in the Union; her insitutions will be confined to the narrow limits they at present occupy, and their overthrow will only be a question of time. On the other hand he contended that if slavery were maintained in Kansas, that it would also be maintained in Kansas, that it would also be maintained in Missouri; it might possibly be extended to Utah, New Mexico, and Southern California; it would certainly be proern California; it would certainly be pro-tected in the Indian Territory and Texas; and when the Northern provinces of Mexico are annexed to the United States—as they certainly will be in the course of time-the field for the extension of Southern institu-general Indian war.

The Yreka Union of the 13th October contains the following:

On Tuesday morning, 9th inst., a large party of Indians collected and started down Rogue River, killing every white man who happened to fall in their way. At Evans Ferry they found two or three men whom they murdered, and then left the river for Waggoner's, on Louse Creek. Just before they reached W.'s they were met by a party of packers with a large train, who saw from their appearance that there was something wrong with them. Presently the packers

As to the leading causes of this outbreak, the massacre of the miners on the Upper Klaimath, in the latter part of July, the murder of several packers, teamsters and travelers on the different routes near the Oregon boundary line, and more recently the killing of two wagoners and their ox teams, near Cottonwood, by the Indians—all these must still be fresh in the recollection of our readers. The military at Fort Lane, G. T., seemed to be powerless in either restraining or punishing the maranders, and the goaded population were at last compelled to rise for their own protection. Mr. Galbraith left Jacksonville on Tuesday, the 9th inst., and the following are the main events which hap-
